More could be added with e.g. Express middleware

- Schema-based validation of input data objects. E.g. Joi

- Centralized and "automatic" error-handling / exception handling. Directing Express errors automatically to log, cutting the handling of that request automatically

- Authentication and authorization. Using some token based authorization framework, mostly OAuth-based.

- Role-based method-level authorization. (You can run this following method/endpoint only if your user account has the role annotated before this method)

- Enabling/disabling, changing things between development and production enviroments. E.g. logging, debug information. Settings. Test data.

- Testing

- TypeScript and the type checks it provides

- Code style checker and formatter

- Some kind of REST API documentation auto-generator, like with Hapi
